An informational interview starts with understanding what you want to learn about. Identify the career(s) you are considering at this time.

Things to consider:	The careers I want to explore are:
You don't need to be 100% sure about what you'd like to pursue. Remember, informational interviews can help you gather more information to determine if a specific career is right for you.	1. 2. 3.

Aerospace & Defense Law Enforcement & Security Advertising/Marketing/PR Agencies Management, Scientific, & Technical Consulting Architecture, Engineering, & Design Manufacturing Accounting, Tax, & Payroll Services Media & Publishing Arts, Entertainment, & Recreation Mining, Oil & Gas Extraction Conservation (Environmental/Wildlife) Ner fTH#dscsf@rvatv3&49NABdvf12&ailDf8t5%&B96eiDNAIn7& Real Estate Energy/Utilities Retail Trade Finance & Insurance Software Development Government / Public Administration Telecommunications Health Care Travel Services Information Technology Transportation & Warehousing Other: ___

Step 3: Target specific companies

In the area below, list up to 10 companies you are interested in exploring. You can use your local chamber of commerce https://www.chamberofcommerce.com/chambers or this business finder tool www.careeronestop.org/Toolkit/Jobs/find-businesses.aspx to find companies in your preferred industries and locations.

1.	6.
2.	7.
3.	8.
4.	9.
5.	10.

PHOENIXLINK | HOW TO CONDUCT AN INFORMATIONAL INTERVIEW